

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	xiii
About the Author, and Why “Gimme!”	xv
Introduction	xvii

PART I

TODAY’S MARKETING CHALLENGES AND THE EMOTI-SUASION RESPONSE

CHAPTER 1	Problems in (Marketing) Paradise	3
CHAPTER 2	Marketers’ Response	17
	Competing on Price?	17
	Innovation Is One Answer	20
	Emotional Brand Appeal Is Another Answer	21
	Be Aware of Overengineering	24
	A Call for More Scientists in Marketing	25
CHAPTER 3	The Consequences of Our Genetic Evolution	29
	What Is Evolution?	29
	Intelligent Design and the Anti-Darwin School	32
	We Are the Product of Our Genes	32

C O N T E N T S

	Humans Have Habits	33
	Detecting Irregularities	36
	Not Too Many Facts	38
	Cognitive Dissonance: Conflicting Beliefs	39
CHAPTER 4	Mechanics of the Brain	43
	Neurons: The Bits and Bytes of the Brain	44
	Memory: A Pattern of Firing Neurons	46
	Functional Areas of the Brain	47
	The Growing Brain	50
	Emotions in the Brain	51
CHAPTER 5	Processing Our Senses	53
	The Entry of a Sense	55
	Desensitizing to Stimuli	57
	Sensory Deprivation	58
	Brand Sensations	59
CHAPTER 6	Putting Memory to Work	63
	Thinking in Units of Memory	65
	Advertising Memory	66
	Low Attention Processing of Advertising?	70
	Advertising Repetition?	71
	Serving Up Simple Advertising Memory Units	73
CHAPTER 7	The Important Role of Emotions	77
	What Are Emotions?	77
	Why Do We Have Them?	78
	Animals Have Emotions, Too	79
	The Emotional Human	79
	Emotions and Decision Making: Two Peas in the Same Pod	82
	Death of the Economically Rational Human	86
CHAPTER 8	Beyond Emotions—to Attitudes	91
	Attitudes and Beliefs	92
	Direct or Indirect Route to Forming Attitudes	92
	Current Attitudes and Future Decisions	93

Contents

	Changing Attitudes	94
	Appreciating Consumers' Beliefs	95
CHAPTER 9	Beyond Attitudes—to Motivation	99
	Maslow and Human Needs	101
	Cognitive Style	103
	Self-Perception Is a Powerful Force	106
CHAPTER 10	Gimme! Gimme!	109
	Our Hedonistic Tendencies	110
	Aspirations	111
	Comfort Zones	112
	Incentives	113
CHAPTER 11	Emoti-Suasion	117
	Expectancy Theory	118
	Triggering	120
	The Moody Target	122

PART II

LESSONS LEARNED AND FOLLOWING OUR GENETIC WIRING

CHAPTER 12	Learning from Ipsos Consumer Research	131
	Advertising Is a Business	132
	Managing the Odds	133
	Branding Matters	134
CHAPTER 13	35 Lessons Learned	137
	1. Familiarity Is Key: You Cannot Love Something You Do Not Know	137
	2. Being Different Offers a Competitive Reason to be Chosen	139
	3. Be Understood for Your Relevance	140
	4. The Quality of the Brand Promise and Consistency, Over Time, Drive Desire	141
	5. Advertising Can Make a Significant Difference When Product Performance Is Similar between Competitive Choices	143

C O N T E N T S

6. Triggering Is Often the Best Objective for Established Brands 146
7. Popularity: Security in Numbers 146
8. Emotions Add an Extra Dimension Beyond the Rational Elements of Product Features 147
9. Advertising's Role Is to Build Emotional Associations for the Brand's Benefit 152
10. It Is Important to Go Beyond Emotional Response to Self-Perceptions, Aspirations, and Comfort Zones 154
11. Emotional Needs, Wants, and Desires Drive Our Motivations 158
12. Brand Icons, Characters, and Spokespersons Strengthen Brand Equity 161
13. Appealing to Many Different Senses Enriches a Brand 162
14. Being Expensive Is Acceptable Because It Is Value That Matters Most 165
15. Private-Label Retailer Brands and Discount Brands Are Becoming Good Enough and Are Reducing the Relevance of Higher-Priced National Brands 166
16. Creative Is King 168
17. Good Advertising Goes to Work Quickly 169
18. Bad Advertising Rarely Wears In 170
19. Memorable Ads Have Something That Helps Them Stick Out 172
20. Poor Branding Is a Major Problem 173
21. Keep It Simple—and Visual 173
22. Branding Devices Are Worthwhile 174
23. Maintain Consistency Over Time (Be Campaignable), but Make New Messages Obvious 176
24. Evolution, Not Revolution 177
25. Aim for Relevant Differentiation 178
26. Social Proof and "Because" 179
27. Advertise for a Reason: News Is Persuasive 180
28. One Unified Creative Approach Works Best 181
29. One Ad at a Time 183
30. Wear-Out—It Happens 184

Contents

31. Better Media Planning Can Pay Off	185
32. Share of Voice Is Less Important than Most Marketers Think	188
33. Recency Planning Is Effective	188
34. Reach Is the Key Element after Creative	190
35. Media Consumption Does Not Match with Ad Recall	192
CHAPTER 14 Closing Thoughts	197
Evolution at Work: A Case in Point	198
Brand Management Is about Managing to the Emotional Gimmes	198
It Is Not about Emotional Advertising	200
Differentiation or Domination?	202
Screening for Better Ads	203
Enough Said	205
Glossary	207
Bibliography	209
Index	211